

CONTENTS

- XI INTRODUCTION: Why Dissent?
- I CHAPTER 1: “The legislature is entitled to all the deference that is due the judiciary.”
Marbury v. Madison, 1803
Pennsylvania Supreme Court justice
John Bannister Gibson
- 17 CHAPTER 2: “Experience should teach us wisdom.”
McCulloch v. Maryland, 1819
President Andrew Jackson
- 31 CHAPTER 3: “Among those for whom and whose posterity the Constitution was ordained and established.”
Dred Scott v. Sanford, 1857
Justice Benjamin R. Curtis
- 45 CHAPTER 4: “To enable the black race to take the rank of mere citizens.”
The Civil Rights Cases, 1883
Justice John Marshall Harlan
- 69 CHAPTER 5: “There is no caste here.”
Plessy v. Ferguson, 1896
Justice John Marshall Harlan

- 81 CHAPTER 6: “Room for debate and for an honest difference of opinion.”
Lochner v. New York, 1905
Justice John Marshall Harlan
Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes
- 93 CHAPTER 7: “Men feared witches and burned women.”
Whitney v. California, 1927
Justice Louis D. Brandeis
- 101 CHAPTER 8: “Almost anything—marriage, birth, death—may in some fashion affect commerce.”
National Labor Relations Board v. Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., 1937
Justice James McReynolds
- 113 CHAPTER 9: “The ugly abyss of racism.”
Korematsu v. United States, 1944
Justice Frank Murphy
Justice Robert H. Jackson
- 127 CHAPTER 10: “Refrain from invidious discriminations.”
Goesaert v. Cleary, 1948
Justice Wiley Rutledge
- 133 CHAPTER 11: “Our decision does not end but begins the struggle over segregation.”
Brown v. Board of Education, 1954
Justice Robert H. Jackson

- 151 CHAPTER 12: “To attribute, however flatteringly, omnicompetence to judges.”
Baker v. Carr, 1962
Justice Felix Frankfurter
Justice John Marshall Harlan
- 167 CHAPTER 13: “A sterile metaphor which by its very nature may distort rather than illumine the problems.”
Abington School District v. Schempp, 1963
Justice Potter Stewart
- 179 CHAPTER 14: “I get nowhere in this case by talk about a constitutional ‘right of privacy.’”
Griswold v. Connecticut, 1965
Justice Hugo L. Black
Justice Potter Stewart
- 191 CHAPTER 15: “That is what this suit is about. Power.”
Morrison v. Olson, 1988
Justice Antonin Scalia
- 211 CHAPTER 16: “Do not believe it.”
Lawrence v. Texas, 2003
Justice Antonin Scalia
- 221 CONCLUSION
- 225 SOURCES AND ADDITIONAL READINGS